

CAPS RESEARCH Health Sector

Research Consortium (HSRC)

A CAPS Research Industry Advisory Group

The CAPS Health Sector Research Consortium (CAPS-HSRC) gathers health sector supply chain executives to explore and inspire customer-focused, end-to-end supply chain management research and leadership unique to the health industry. Members also have the opportunity to gain insight into other industries' best practices, and, in turn, influence some of the world's top strategic supply management executives with thought leadership from the health industry.

HSRC was founded in 2004 at Arizona State University to bring academic research on supply management to health sector organizations including distributors, suppliers, group purchasing organizations, health information technology providers, and hospital systems.

In 2015, CAPS integrated the HSRC as an Industry Advisory Group, enjoying all the benefits of HSRC membership combined with enhanced CAPS membership benefits and cross-industry resources like practitioner-focused research, benchmarking services, and peer-to-peer networking events. With a single financial commitment to CAPS, HSRC membership is open to all companies in the health sector, contributing further to the group's breadth, activity, data, and intellectual capital.

ABOUT CAPS

For the past 30 years, CAPS Research has been empowering supply chain professionals with profound discovery, powerful connection, and clear foresight. We create sales-free, bias-free strategic insight for top global organizations through research, benchmarking and member company networking. CAPS is jointly sponsored by Fortune 500 member companies, the W. P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University, and the Institute for Supply Management®.

The CAPS-HSRC is the leading source of unbiased, actionable research and strategic resources to reduce risk, lower cost, influence policy, and accelerate the performance of the health sector supply chain.

CAPS-HSRC members commit to:

- Prepare health sector supply management executives for challenges and opportunities facing the field
- Guide the CAPS-HSRC toward cutting-edge research and critical benchmarking surveys in health supply chain
- Create a cross-industry dialogue to benefit healthcare in adopting and designing best practices while avoiding pitfalls from other industries
